Lincoln Quilters Guild Announcements

From the President - Nancy Anderson

Happy February. We are just one month away from the first Lincoln Quilters Guild meeting of our 50th anniversary year! The anniversary committee has met several times during the break, and we have some stellar events and surprises in store. We want to remind you of a few things that happen at the beginning of the year, so you have time to prepare.

March Program and Workshop

Maggie Copple, guild member and co-chair for programs, likes PBJ. No, that's not peanut butter and jelly (though she may like that, too!). In this case, PBJ stands for Patterns By Jen, and Maggie has completed several quilts made from these patterns written by Jen Shaffer. On March 13, Jen will present her trunk show, "Covered in Love (not Peanut Butter)." Her workshop on March 14 will feature her pattern Border Quilt 4. The registration form, supply list, and cutting instructions are posted on the LQG website.

The quilt with the purple background pictured here shows Border Quilt 4 in its entirety. The workshop will cover the center medallion and the first two borders (flying geese and friendship stars). Workshop participants can stop after those borders or continue at home to make the whole quilt. The quilt with the white background shows the center medallion and the first border. It's easy to see how this pattern can be customized to fit your needs. Program chairs work hard to arrange quality programs and workshops for guild members. Please show your support by registering today.

National Quilting Day

National Quilting Day is Saturday, March 18. Sheila Green is looking for volunteers to help make this annual event a success. Please contact Sheila if you can help, and make sure to check out the day's schedule to learn about everything that is happening.

Isles Sale

The Isles sale is tentatively scheduled for Sunday, March 26. Please bring fabric donations to the March guild meeting and plan to attend the sale.

Treasurer Elect Needed

Our treasurer-elect has had to step down for personal reasons. If you can help the guild by serving in this role, please contact Nancy Anderson at president@lincolnquiltersguild.org.

Educational Opportunity

The American Quilt Study Group's Virtual Winter Study Centers will be February 18-19. This year for the first time, these sessions are open to non-members at a cost of $40 per session.
